

Relocating?

As you envision your life in your new home, how are your goals and ambitions fitting into the picture?

REA has worked with thousands of men and women looking to redefine their lives and careers in new locations.

REA recognizes the special challenges families face when accepting a transfer to a new location. To assist with this transition, we offer the RELOCATION DECISION ASSISTANCE program for both the working and non-working accompanying spouse/partner. We will assist the partner in making an informed decision about potential career opportunities and provide any other information they might need about the destination area prior to the employee accepting the relocation offer.

Local REA Coaches, who are familiar with job markets, employer networks, professional and community organizations and contacts in the destination areas, will provide site-specific information related to the partner's questions and needs.
